THE PARCELS POST

The parcels post proposition has been given new life by the interest taken in it by Postmaster General Meyer, and discussion for and against the measure is very animated.

The principal argument used against it is that mail order houses and department stores will reap a rich harvest at the expense of country merchants in the smaller towns.

This objection Mr. Meyer proposes to meet by giving the local dealers a cheap rate on rural routes running out from their respective towns, while the city stores will be obliged to pay the full rates of 12c per pound.

This plan seems to be all right in theory, but the chances are more than even that the catalog houses will find a way to meet it before it is thirty days old.

There is nothing to prevent this class of houses having a distributing agent in every good-sized town, where goods can be shipped by freight or express, and mailed out at rural rates.

Marshall Field & company have delivery wagons in all the suburban towns near Chicago. Dray-loads of goods are shipped out in trucks every morning and the wagons are kept busy during the day delivering.

Many other firms employ the same methods, and there is no reason why this service could not be extended, as it will be if the government offers sufficient inducements to add in delivery.

The most serious objection to the plan is found in the fact that it opens up another channel for the government to engage in private business, and this is contrary to the spirit of a republican form of government.

It is the entering wedge for public ownership. If the government can conduct an express business, as a common carrier, why not handle all of the express business, and then why not take over the telegraph service, and in time the railroads?

It is a dangerous experiment, and congress will do well to investigate carefully before adopting radical measures.

CLEARING HOUSE CHECKS

The Chicago clearing house declared yesterday to issue clearing house checks in small denominations of $1, $2, $5 and $10 for the convenience of merchants and manufacturers.

These checks have back of them ample collateral from the banks to whom they are issued, as well as the guarantee of the clearing house by whom they are issued. They are practically Chicago exchange, payable to bearer, and will be accepted by the railroads, and all other lines of business.

The Chicago banks are to be congratulated on the policy adopted, for it will do much to relieve local conditions and its influence will be felt throughout the west.

The question is frequently asked, "How long will this currency stringency continue?" and the answer is largely an echo, but one thing is certain and that is, that the best financial brain of the country is a unit in attempting to solve the problem.

The banks of the nation are stronger today than they were ten days ago, and they are accumulating resources every day. They are making the best of a bad situation, and in the meantime doing all in their power to relieve the strain.

As a people we have had every form of the fire that we could beg or borrow, and we were spread out so thin in attempting to do all kinds of business, that it will require time and patience to get back to normal conditions.

It is well to remember that there is more money and property in the country today than ever before, and the same people occupy the stage.

We have been running under high pressure so long, that the machinery needs overhauling and readjusting. This requires time, but it is very important, and when accomplished the nation will be on a better basis than ever before.

The country is all right, and with a little time and patience everything else will be all right. Don't worry.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

President S. Mellen, of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad company delivered an address yesterday to the National Grange at Hartford, Conn. Mr. Mellen is not a peasant, but like every other thoughtful man he attempts to analyze present conditions. There has been so much talking, and so little thinking of late that it is refreshing and wholesome to read an article that has some thought behind it. Mr. Mellen said in part:

"The losses in value, credit, and fortune in this country since the beginning of this year have been greater than occurred as a result of the civil war. Many are in distress who thought a short time since they had a competency. Those who still have a competency are in distress through lack of credit to obtain money to carry on the work, so necessary at such a time to give employment to those who must otherwise feel the pinch of hunger."

"This is not a rich man's panic. It is a widespread distress, rapidly extending itself to the farthest sections of the country, and it will levy its tax in such a way that no man, woman, or child will fail to bear his portion of the burden. On some it will press unduly, and only those who have nothing to lose can view the question with equanimity."

"Even those who did not know the gun was loaded, whose only thought was separation and popularity, are becoming sobered by the outlook, and at the foot of the toboggan down which we are gliding is a bump, and an examination of the wreckage which it will cause may teach us wherein lies the responsibility regarding which at the present time so many of us are in doubt."

"There has been too much writing, too much talking, too little knowledge, too much assertion. There has been abnormal activity in hunting trouble which will now be fully employed in placing responsibility."

"It has been said 'The pen is mightier than the sword.' Lately, events have seemed to prove this with emphasis. That speech is silver and silence is golden, when we have had more experiences with the latter, we shall know."

"Market quotations are the hallmark of the financial world, and that same world which was so ready a few months since to give credit on the basis of such quotations, through an unnecessary and absolute shattering of confidence, has little or no use today for any system of credit whatever, and there is insufficient money in the world to carry on business if it must actually pass from hand to hand."

"Don't deceive yourselves that Wall Street suffers alone, nor that patriotism is only to be earned from those who hold office, that bravery is only to be found among those who risk their lives, that knowledge is only to be acquired from the study of books, that honesty is to be found only where preached the most vigorously, that homely virtue only exists where most advertised."

"Wall Street distributes its burdens quickly, and you cannot escape your share. As much selfish patriotism was shown during the recent panic in New York as was ever shown by any of those in other walks of life who have most severely criticized the men and methods of that financial center."

Janesville Beautiful would not cost a million dollars despite the figures of the Recorder's attorney. It can be accomplished if everyone puts their shoulder to the wheel. Dr. Dwight did not mean that everything he planned could be accomplished in a year. Madison has been twenty years building its roads and they are not finished yet.

Former candidate for governor on the democratic ticket John Aylward says the democrats are modest about seeking office. Any one who has watched the election returns for several years past is sure of that fact.

There never was a proposition presented to the people that knackers could not be found. Dr. Dwight's project for making Janesville a beauty spot finds many opponents among men who should be boosters.

Beloit claims a population of sixteen thousand. It must have taken its census on circus day or stopped all the trains and interurban cars passing through to bring up the total.

Beloit Municipal court accepted a check of a Rockford man in exchange for a fine and now finds the check is no good. Evidently the Rockford man checked justice pretty decisively.

The county board this noon partook of the fare at the County Poor Farm and know now how the food the county furnishes its charges tastes.

The movement for good roads in Rock county is taking definite form. The county board is alive to the responsibility.

In Milwaukee the question of why Plaster bought the Sentinel and how much he paid for it appears to be the all-absorbing topic.

Has the Milwaukee Free Press paid Ex-Governor Scofield that large damage assessed by the court for the libel it printed about him?

Bryan's only triumph appears to be that "Hub" Manson has resigned the chairmanship of the democratic party.

Chicago banks have begun the issue of clearing house certificates that pass as money the same as the cashier checks in Janesville.

The turkeys have all gone to roost on top of the barn and the prices have gone up with them.

That question of river navigation is something that should interest Janesville shippers.

This talk of reduction of meat prices is something to fill spaces—no reality.

TO IGNORE THE BAKER ROAD LAW

COUNTY BOARD DECIDES TO ACT UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF CHAPTER 487, ONLY.

INITIATIVE OF THE TOWNS

In Highway Improvement Matters Is Thereby Preserved—This Morning's Session.

By the adoption of the report and recommendations of the special committee consisting of Supervisors Skyles, Gettle, Crosby, and Shulley, and District Attorney Fisher, appointed on Tuesday to investigate the matter—the county board today held the adoption of Chapter 552 of the laws of 1907, known as the Baker law and fathered by Assemblyman A. S. Baker of Evansville, to be entirely optional with the counties and decided to give this measure the go-by and work only under Chapter 487 of the laws of 1907. This is not in strict keeping with the recommendation of W. O. Hetchkiss, chief of the highway division of this state government, which was read to the supervisors on Tuesday, but the board evidently feels that it has good and sufficient grounds for disregarding it. As a result of this procedure the county will not be organized into a road district and the initiative and the deciding as to the amounts to be expended in road-building will practically remain entirely with the towns, as heretofore. Nor will the responsibility of caring for roads designated for improvement rest upon the county before such improvement has been carried out. Under Chap. 487, the board will proceed to lay out a prospective system of main highways extending into every town; elect a highway commissioner for a term of three years or a year and a month; and fix an annual or monthly salary of a person not exceeding $1, the same to be paid out of the general fund as in the case of other county officers; levy an annual highway tax not to exceed 1/2 of one mill on the dollar on the assessed valuation, the tax so raised to be added to all special highway taxes heretofore levied and to be kept in a fund known as the county highway reserve fund. Ten per cent of the money so raised is to be set aside as a county highway repair fund but this amount may be increased or diminished from time to time by the county board. The construction and improvement of roads is to be under the supervision of the county commissioner and the chairman of the town where such work is being done and the compensation of the town chairman must be paid by the town. At the annual town meeting the electors of any town may vote a special highway tax of not less than one-half mill nor more than 2 1/2 mills on the assessed valuation and when there has been flood in proper form with the county board a petition setting forth the fact that the said town has voted to cover any main traveled highway, after the same has been properly graded at the expense of the said town, the county board must appropriate the other half of the cost and cause such kind of levy on all taxable property in the county. Such highway, however, must be one of those designated by the board for improvement, and no county is to be compelled to expend more than $2,000 in any one town within a single year. If the aggregate sum asked for by the towns exceeds three-fourths of one mill on the dollar of the assessed valuation of the county, then each town is to share proportionately as to the several amounts asked for.

Improvements of Past Year.

Supervisor McVey reported on the special road improvement of two half mile stretches in the town of Belmont—one being a portion of the old Madison road and the other a part of the river road. For this work the town appropriated $1,000 and the county a like amount. Gravel was laid at a depth of 9 inches on the river road, 12 J. McGavock taking the contract at $3.25 a rod. The work on the Madison road was done by Edward Myers & Son at $2.80 a rod. On the river road 300 rods was completed and on the Madison road, 250 rods.

Supervisor Henry of the committee appointed to supervise the special improvements in the town of Plymouth for which the town appropriated $100 and the county a like sum, reported that 3,630 feet were laid with 4 inches of gravel and 4 inches of gravel and clay top dressing at a cost of $733.72. The average haul was a quarter of a mile.

County Clerk Lee read a report from the committee in charge of special improvements in the town of Center for which the county and town each appropriated $200. There were two half mile stretches on which 10 inches of gravel was laid. The contract price was $450 and there were some additional expenses. All three of the road reports were accepted.

Several Claims Disallowed.

Supervisor Paul read the report of Committee 43 which has the disposition of the claims of sheriffs, constables, justices, etc. Two claims of Officer W. P. Moxon for $15.47 and $11.22, respectively, were referred back without recommendation. The claims of Chief Scheibel of Deloit were out down nearly $100 and all the other officers, with a few exceptions, suffered to a greater or less extent. All claims of justices for monies held without the authority of the district attorney were disallowed. On motion an old claim by Alvin Maxfield for $2.75 fees was allowed. A resolution instructing the county purchasing committee to invite all newspapers to bid on the publication of proceedings and instructing the said committee to let the contract to the lowest responsible bidder and also providing for the binding of 100 volumes of the reports was passed. Late yesterday afternoon the report of Committee No. 1 on illegal taxes was adopted; the Shattuck tax receipt matter held over for future consideration; and $1,000 appropriated for the use of the purchasing committee.

At the afternoon session the board passed a resolution providing a tax of three-tenths of a mill on the assessed valuation of the county for a permanent road fund. This tax will mean an income of about $12,000 per annum to be used on the county's roads.

A resolution was passed placing County Judge Sale on a salary of $2,000 per year instead of the embeled salary and few thought he now received. The judge must first accept the agreement before the act becomes effective.

STORM SEWER WORK NEARING COMPLETION

All Railroad Work on Sewer Has Been Finished—Little More to Be Done.

All railroad work on the storm sewer that is being built in the vicinity of the Five Points crossing has been completed, the pipe having been laid under the tracks, and as soon as the two intakes on the west side of the crossing are put in the entire job will be finished. These two intakes will be placed at the corner of Madison and Wall street and at the corner of Pleasant and Washington streets. Also, no more puddles of water on the east side of the railroad crossing are to trouble the property holders who have had a long and just grievance against the city for the nuisance caused by poor drainage. Lads who have been wont to take a swim in the puddle of water that always formed in front of Mrs. Kate Richter's store after a heavy rain will be deprived of this privilege next spring and summer when it is hoped the surface water will be carried away by the sewer which has two intakes on the east side of the crossing where most of the trouble has been caused.

The supporting cast was fair and the production pleased a good-sized audience.

HARRIS SUE FOR $20,000

EX-TREASURER OF PENNSYLVANIA ACCUSED OF BRIBERY.

Sensational Proceedings Begun by Receiver of Defunct Enterprise National Bank of Allegheny.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 14.—The most surprising of the many sensations which have developed since the failure of the Enterprise National bank of Allegheny, in 1905, occurred Wednesday when Thomas Harris, receiver of the defunct institution, entered a suit in the United States district court against ex-State Treasurer of Pennsylvania Frank G. Harris, claiming $20,000 with interest from October 23, 1903.

The petition alleged that Harris as state treasurer selected the Enterprise National bank as a state depository, making aggregate deposits of state money of $20,800,000. It is alleged the Pennsylvania Development company was formed by T. Leo Clark, cashier of the Enterprise bank, who killed himself the morning the government closed the institution; William H. Andrews, territorial delegate to congress from New Mexico; Arthur Kennedy and Francis J. Torrance, two prominent Pittsburghers.

It is stated that Andrews, Clark, Kennedy and Torrance entered into an agreement whereby the Pennsylvania Development company was enabled to borrow large sums from the Enterprise bank. Harris, it is alleged, was given two checks of $10,000 each by Clark October 21, 1903, drawn upon the Merchants National bank of Philadelphia, where the Enterprise bank carried a large account, and it is distinctly charged that Harris used the money realized on these checks for his own personal benefit, knowing that the drafts were fraudulently given him and that he was accepting a bribe for his part in permitting the promoters of the Pennsylvania Development company to use the funds of the Enterprise bank and the state.

TAFT HAVING A GOOD VOYAGE.

Wireless Message Says He Will Hurry Through Europe.

On Board Admiral Hornbill's Flagship Rainbow, via Wireless to United States Cruiser Chattanooga, Acting as Dispatch Boat to Nagasaki, Nov. 11.—Secretary of War William H. Taft and his party are in the best of health and enjoying a pleasant voyage. The Rainbow is due at Vladivostok at 11 o'clock on the morning of November 17. Secretary Taft will not know his route through Europe or his plans there until he arrives at Vladivostok. It is very probable, however, that he will sail for New York on December 7 from Chongchong on the steamer Majestic or from Hamburg on the Hamburg-American liner President Grant. Mrs. Taft will remain in Europe two weeks longer, but the secretary of war is anxious to get home, and all official entertainments at Berlin have been declared off by him. He may also eliminate the official entertainments which have been planned for him at St. Petersburg.

Secretary Taft expressed his satisfaction over the reports of the political situation at home, as received by him.

HARRIMAN RULING POSTPONED TO DEC. 1

ELABORATE ARGUMENTS HEARD BY FEDERAL JUDGE HOUGH.

SPOONER FOR DEFENSE

Counsel for Railway Magnate Urge That His Stock Deals With Union Pacific Don't Concern Public.

New York, Nov. 14.—After seven hours and a half of argument on both sides of the question, Judge Hough in the United States circuit court announced Wednesday night that he would not be ready to render a decision on the petition of the Interstate Commerce commission to compel E. H. Harriman to answer certain questions propounded to him last spring in the course of the commission's investigation into the so-called Harriman lines, until December 1. The opposing counsel were given the privilege of filing additional briefs during the next two weeks.

The arguments, which were not concluded until 6:30 p. m., took a wide range and the privileges and powers of the Interstate Commerce commission were thoroughly gone into.

Spooner Thinks for Harriman.

Former Senator John C. Spooner of Wisconsin appeared for the first time in the case, and argued in defense of the position maintained by Mr. Harriman—that he is not required to tell the commission what individual profit he made in selling the stocks of other railroads held by him to the Union Pacific company or to detail the manner in which the famous ten per cent. Union Pacific dividend was declared in August, 1906, and its announcement deferred for two days. Mr. Harriman has also declined to say how much stock of the Union Pacific, if any, he bought just prior to the announcement of the dividend.

John G. Milburn was also heard in defense of Mr. Harriman and in opposition to the petition filed by the commission. On behalf of the government, represented by the Interstate Commerce commission, the arguments were conducted by United States District Attorney Henry L. Stimson and Frank B. Kellogg, special counsel to the commission.

Says It Made Money for Road.

Counsel for Mr. Harriman stated to Judge Hough that the stock purchases of the Union Pacific railroad, amounting to $150,000,000 during one period and about $182,000,000 in the aggregate, were made on the recommendation of the executive committee, approved by the board of directors and ratified by the stockholders. All that Mr. Harriman had done, Mr. Milburn declared, had met with the fullest approval of the stockholders of the Union Pacific company. He further stated that allowing for losses sustained in the recent heavy slump of prices, the Union Pacific company had profited no less than $32,000,000 by its stock purchases.

Court's Pointed Remarks.

Sonator Spooner declared that the stock deals between Mr. Harriman and the Union Pacific were matters of concern only between the individual and the stockholders, and had nothing to do with Interstate commerce. Mr. Kellogg declared the commission had a right to inquire into the uses to which the moneys of a railroad were put. It was a necessary inquiry, he maintained, in the fixing and adjustment of rates to be charged by common carriers.

Judge Hough interrupted the attorneys on both sides with many pointed questions. He said, among other things, that he did not exactly see what the deferred announcement of the Union Pacific dividend had to do with Interstate traffic. He also asked if, after all, the commission was only seeking by the unanswered questions to prove from whom Harriman, the individual, purchased the stocks subsequently sold to the company of which he is president and what profit he individually made by the transaction.

BANK CURRENCY FOR CHICAGO.

Clearing House Checks Will Be Put in Circulation.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—Clearing house checks in small denominations will be placed in circulation in Chicago Friday to relieve the financial stringency. Backed by stocks and bonds worth one-third more than the face value of the checks which they secure, as well as by the combined credit of the clearing house banks, it is expected that the checks will be accepted by tradespeople as readily as the greenbacks whose work they will do. Railway officials have instructed agents to accept these checks in payment for freight bills and transportation tickets.

The final decision to place the checks in circulation was taken at a meeting of the entire Clearing House association Wednesday.

ENGLISH ARE COOL TOWARD THE KAISER

NO RIOTING BUT LITTLE ENTHUSIASM SHOWN IN LONDON.

ANTAGONISM IS STRONG

"German Invasion" Hobby Causes People to Suspect Emperor's Protections of His Desire for Peace.

London, Nov. 14.—Emperor William of Germany, the guest of King Edward, made a speech Wednesday at the Guild hall, where he was entertained by the city of London. He urged the strengthening of the Anglo-German relations and emphasized his unalterable desire to foster the peace of the world.

The day passed off without the expected Socialist demonstration, much less any disorder or rioting.

The reception accorded Emperor William by the people of London has been respectful, but compared to that given some other royal visitors of recent years, it was in no sense enthusiastic.

Anti-German Feeling Strong.

The atmosphere which has prevailed during his appearance in public has been tinged with decided coolness, and there is no doubt that the English officials are relieved that the passage of the German emperor through the streets of this city was attended by no disagreeable incidents.

The anti-German feeling among a section of the English people, which is just at present particularly strong, derived fresh impetus from the antagonism which erupted out between the two nations on various lines during the recent peace conference at The Hague. Emperor William evidently intends that his visit shall inspire better feeling, but the results are yet to be seen. However cordial the relations between the ruling houses of Great Britain and Germany may be, the British public does not share these sentiments.

"German Invasion" Hobby.

A large section, if not a majority of English people, persists in believing Germany to be Great Britain's one enemy among the nations and this enmity has been fanned recently by continuous warnings from some of the leading newspapers, and reviews, as well as from military experts, that Germany's chief naval and military activity is directed toward schemes for the invasion of England—that Germany plans to surprise England some day when she is fully prepared to strike suddenly, just as Japan surprised Russia.

"The German Invasion" Is Becoming a hobby of the anti-Germans and a subject of ridicule for pro-Germans; the idea has, however, unquestionably affected the mind of the public and it is tending to surround with suspicion Emperor William's professions of his desire for peace.

Louisville to Have Street Car Strike.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 14.—By a vote heavily in favor of the proposition, the union employees of the Louisville Railway company Wednesday night voted to strike. GOOD WORK.

Done Daily in Janesville. Many Citizens Tell of It.

Nearly every reader has heard of Doan's Kidney Pills. Their good work in Janesville still continues, and our citizens are constantly adding endorsement by public testimony. No better proof of merit can be had than the experience of friends and neighbors. Read this case:

Mrs. Annie Kohlhoff, of 230 Cherry St., Janesville, Wis., says: "Since using Doan's Kidney Pills some years ago for kidney troubles and backache, I have had no hesitation in recommending them to every sufferer I have met. I had used remedy after remedy and tried plaster and did everything I knew of for these complaints, but the trouble grew continually worse, and was fast undermining my general health. About 7 years ago I was in a very bad condition, and it was at that time that I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills and procured a box at the People's Drug Co. and began using them. Good results followed quickly and a continued treatment brought me a complete cure. I have never had any kidney trouble since I used Doan's Kidney Pills." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. His COURTSHIP

By HELEN R. MARTIN,
Author of "Tillie: A Mennonite Maid."

Copyright, 1907, by McClure, Phillips & Company.

"What was she doing?" demanded Abe in a tone of sudden suspicion.

"Doing?" Nothing," Kloross responded, blowing a cloud of smoke from his mouth.

"What was she here for, then?"

"Because she chose to be, I suppose."

"She went up to bed when I did already. What has she smug down again?"

"I might ask the same question of you, Abe."

"I heard her when she snuck downstairs. So I put some things on and followed her up."

"What for?"

"I suspected I'd see what she was up to anyhow."

"Yes!" said Kloross in an absent tone, pushing back his hat and blowing up clouds of smoke.

"She came out here and set alongside of you," pursued Abe, "I seen her?"

"So did I."

"What for did she want to do that there?" Abe angrily demanded.

"It was queer, I told you, wasn't it?"

"She's my girl, and you don't to spon with her."

"Go to bed, Abe," Kloross advised wearily.

"I took notice she run off mighty quick when she heard me comin'," he said, with dark suspicion.

"Not very fluttering to you; that's a fact," Kloross conceded.

"Are you leavin' her be?" Abe threateningly asked.

Kloross took his cigar from his mouth and measured the blue smoke which before him with cold eyes, which made the other's fall in embarrassment.

Then, turning his back on him, he continued to smoke.

Abe scowled, hesitated and finally, with evident reluctance, gave up the fight and slunk away, going slowly back to the house.

CHAPTER XIV.

WHEN Kloross opened his eyes the next morning it was with a sense of pleasure that gradually, as full consciousness came to him, assumed the form of a desire to continue his interrupted talk of the night before with Zandie. As he lay on his back, his hands clasped under his head, the impression he had received of the charm of the girl's personality came back to him vividly. He complementarily decided that he would take the first opportunity that day to see and talk with her once more.

But the day passed, and the opportunity did not present itself.

In the evening he betook himself to the terrace by the gate and sat waiting for her to come out to him. Not until his vigil had reached the hour of 11 unreluctantly did he give it up.

"She's afraid of Abe," he decided as, with a keener sense of disappointment that surprised himself, he went into the silent house and sought his bed.

The two following days left him still filled of his purpose. It looked as though the girl herself tried to avoid him. The fact only aggravated his desire to renew his investigation of her. To defer it so long was like being obliged to wait a whole month for the next number of an interesting serial. There were many things they had not talked out that night she had come to him. It remained yet to decide what employment she should take up in town.

Kloross had usually found that his interest in a woman was in an inverse ratio to his intimacy with her. The charm of mystery or elusiveness quickly vanished on a closer view. But here was a case in which what at first had seemed a perfectly obvious character grew more mysterious and therefore more interesting each time she opened her lips.

As a diversion from his irritation at his continued failure to see her alone he one day asked Mr. Morningstar's permission to sleep that night in the haunted part of the house.

He was surprised at the effect his simple request produced. The farmer's wife turned white to the lips and trembled so that she had to pause in her clearing of the dinner table and sink into a chair.

"You couldn't hire me with dinnere to go near there?" she gasped. "And I wouldn't be doing right to leave you so venturesome if you don't know better yourself."

He had lingered after the rest had left the dinner table to put his request, and he was alone with her. With his usual contempt for feminine logic, he would not waste time in reasoning with her on the point at issue, but at once put to her the one argument which he knew could scarcely fail to convince her. "I'll pay a dollar extra board this week for the privilege," he said. Delicacy in dealing with Mrs. Morningstar would have been casting pearls.

"What for do you want to do something that dangerous?" she curiously inquired, weakening in her resistance, as he was sure she would.

"I never met a ghost. I'd find it interesting to make the acquaintance of one."

He suddenly started as he became aware of Georgiana's presence in the kitchen. She had come in at the door behind him and had walked into the room before he saw her. He cast a hasty glance upon her to find evidence of her having overheard his remark, delivered in his natural tone and language and not in that of his assumed character.

But Georgiana was not observant. She gave no sign of having heard him as, fanning her heated face, she languidly rested on the big wooden settee. Daisy followed and sat down beside her.

"We've decided it's too hot just now, at noon, to walk over to the woods. We're going to bed until it's cooler," Georgiana announced.

"Why, what's the matter, Mrs. Morningstar?" she asked, for the landlady still looked pale in spite of the proffered extra dollar.

"Are you and Pete having a row?" asked Daisy, with relish, flinging a green cushion off the settee to a chair across the room.

"Oh, no and Doe we're havin' a debate! He wants for to sleep in the haunted room once. I ain't in for it much, but," she said doubtfully, "I guess I must give in, too, seen' he's promised a extra dollar on his board for the chance."

"The girls stared, puzzled, and Kloross had a look of being cornered. But even in his annoyance at such a 'give away' the added liveliness of Georgiana's face in its rare self-forgetfulness under her momentary surprise was not lost upon him.

"Board? Does he pay board?" asked Daisy, half reaching for her notebook. "A farmhand don't board."

Mrs. Morningstar was confused. "Oh, Doe," she stammered, "how's a body to answer 'em? Well, to be sure," she added, becoming resourceful, "a farmhand's board is counted as part pay."

"How fine of you, Peter," said Georgiana enthusiastically, "to rise above this world, superstitious fear! Your spirit of inquiry, too, is fine. I am glad you are undertaking to do this, Peter. I believe we can rise to a plane where fear is entirely eliminated."

"There's a mouse," remarked Peter experimentally, pointing under the settee, and simultaneously the two girls, with genteelly repressed shrieks, sprung to their feet.

"It ain't no such a thing!" Mrs. Morningstar indignantly denied the revelation on her housekeeping. "It ain't no mice in my house. A mouse house—that there I don't have."

Daisy, holding her skirts high enough to reveal her pretty ankles and dainty shoes, and Georgiana, trembling, stood out in the middle of the room.

"Is mice eliminated from that there plane you referred to, mice?" Peter inquired.

Georgiana's smile was vain. "De you mean to be facetious, Peter?"

"Supposed the haunted room is—mice," he suggested.

"The mice are no doubt the only creatures that haunt the place," Georgiana answered, still holding high her skirts.

"You will find out if you try sleepin' there," Mrs. Morningstar warned them. Daisy dropped her skirts after a cautious glance around her and took up her notebook. "What are the facts of this case?"

"The facts are that there's a mouse in the haunted room," Peter repeated.

MOTHER'S FRIEND

Lawyer-like eye upon Mrs. Morningstar. "I'm awfully stuck on psychic phenomena."

"I don't know right what you mean," Mrs. Morningstar hesitated. "Is it that you want to know what it makes in the haunted room?"

"Yes. What has been seen there and by whom? And what is the story of the room? Usually there's a romantic legend attached to a place believed to be haunted."

Mrs. Morningstar was usually glib enough and liked nothing better than to gossip of her own and her neighbors' affairs to an interested listener. But she did not seem to greet these questions with her usual readiness.

"It don't come easy to me to tell about what happened there, for all I'm used to it for some twenty years now. If I didn't want to work out with pop and Abe this after in the fields over I'd change the subject," she said, using the phrase with a self-conscious air of employing elegant language, "for we do not never talk anything before her about what happened upstairs there; it's near twenty-one years back already. I'm sure she was just a little over a year old."

She sat down to tell her story, and Georgiana and Daisy returned to the settee, the latter with her notebook open on her lap.

"We were keepin' hotel here and we had a many comers and goers. Here one day a couple come, a man and his missus and their baby a year and a half old. They was young people—that I must give 'em—and they had money a plenty. They sayed they'd stay a while, bein' as they liked my cookin', though to be sure they didn't eat much, neither one of 'em. The missus was always wonderful pale and she never could fetch a smile. She was always settin' and thinkin' starin' in front of herself and not notice no person nor nothin'. She didn't seem to have no heart for that baby of hers."

British Scientific Farming.
A new era in British farming seems to be developing from the experiments at the Cambridge university farm at Impington. During the last eight years all known varieties of wheat have been collected, and, while most of them could not be acclimated, a few have been selected for resistance to rust, good cropping capacity, free milling quality, stiff straw, etc., and have been crossed with British wheat so successfully as to produce an immediate increase in value of 10 per cent or more. Further improvement of barley and other plants is anticipated.

Merely Preparatory.
"I don't mind telling you," said the pretty girl confidentially, "that I want to take a thorough course in cooking in order to fit myself to be a good wife." "You are doing the right thing, my dear," said the matron in charge of the cooking school. "May I ask how soon you expect to be married?" "How should I know?" rejoined the pretty girl, daintily rolling up her sleeves. "I haven't found the man yet."

Superlatively Parliamentary.
"There's a motion before the house," says Mrs. President, holding the gavel so that her rings came into the foreground. "What is your wish regarding it?" "Mrs. President," begins the new member, rising with a flutter. "Mrs. Justine," recognizes the president. "I move that the motion be carried."—Chicago Evening Post.

Alphabetical.
The kindergarten children are struggling with the alphabet. "Who can tell what comes after G?" asks the teacher. Silence reigns. Again she questions: "Doesn't anyone know what comes after G?" Then Carleton raises his hand. "I do," he says. "Whizz. Geo whizz."—Woman's Home Magazine.

Hard to Dodge.
Wedderly—"You say your friend Higgins left a widow?" Singleton—"Yes." Wedderly—"He must have been a wise guy. I tried to leave one once, but she kept on my trail until she married me."

FEARED FOR NIECE'S FUTURE.

Peculiar Bent of Child's Mind Displayed Uncle.

"I hate to think it," grimly said Uncle Thurod Totton, "but I am mightily afraid my little 10-year-old niece, Luella, is going to cause a great deal of worry and unhappiness in the world when she grows up." "What makes you think so?" asked old Squire Belcher, who had come over to borrow a whiffetree. "She seems to be a real nice, thoughtful, good-tempered child now." "Well," was the explanation, "other day, our gray gander got tangled up in a discussion with the shepherd pup, and when the fracas was over there was skurried a feather left on the fowl. And little Luella took and dyked him out in a pair of draw-pantaloons—and a chin-slip, I mean—of white cloth sewed by her own fair hands. And, somehow, I can't help fearing that when she attains an appropriate age she will wear nose-glasses and several double-eyebrows, and so crusading against all the common and unimportant indecencies that human flesh is heir to."—Exchange.

Violin as a Hair Restorer.
It is now a scientifically proved fact that music exercises a great influence on the growth of the hair. It is with good reason that great musicians, such as Paganini, Liszt and Paderewski, are represented with a growth of hair which Absalom might have envied. Science has proved that stringed instruments have a favorable influence on the growth of the hair, while brass instruments act in the opposite direction. Every one has probably observed that a bald violinist is as rare as a bald horn player is common. Wood instruments, such as the flute, seem to have no pronounced influence either way.

This Country's Women Workers.
The United States has a greater proportion of working women than any other country in the world.

Comedy Sketch Team.
Nevertheless and notwithstanding. Two words that a newspaper paragrapher uses when he can't think of anything else.—Puck.
